COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

On average, community association residents connect three to four times per year with their community's governing board. These statistics are part of the biennial Homeowner Satisfaction Survey conducted by the Foundation for Community Association Research commissioned by Zogby International to poll people living in community associations, asking about their experience.

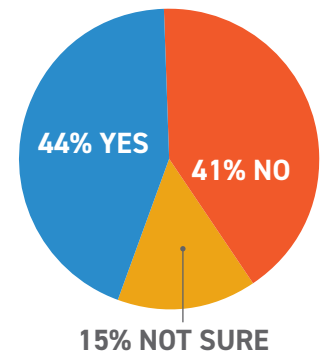

In your current community, have you ever attended any community association board meetings?

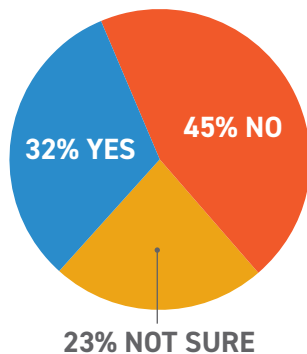

Are your board meetings and annual meetings available for in person participation?

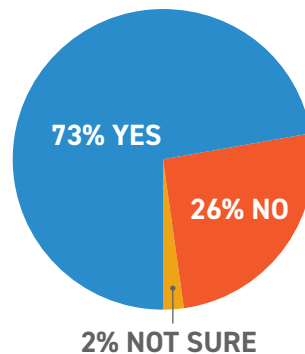

Are your board meetings and annual meetings available for remote participation?

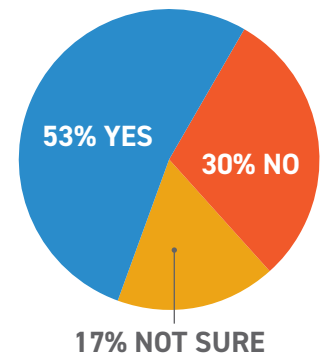

Are your board meetings and annual meetings available for hybrid participation?

Have you been a more frequent attendee of community meetings because they are available remotely?

Would you be a more frequent attendee of community meetings if they were available remotely?

Due to rounding, totals may not equal 100%
