South Carolina

COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION LIVING

$3.110 BILLION

Annual investment by South Carolina community association residents in maintaining shared infrastructure, amenities, and services—reducing demands on local governments.

48,500 VOLUNTEERS

South Carolinians serve on community association boards each year, providing $59.6 million in volunteer leadership.

4% VALUE PREMIUM

Homes in community associations typically command at least a 4% price premium over comparable homes.

1,420,000
South Carolinians

595,000
homes

7,600
community associations

Community associations—including homeowners associations (HOAs), condominium associations, and housing cooperatives—are self-governed neighborhoods where homeowners collectively maintain and protect shared property, amenities, and infrastructure.

Homeowners elect volunteer boards to oversee the community's operations and finances. Mandatory assessments fund essential services, maintenance, insurance, reserve savings, and other investments that preserve the community and protect property values.

Representing more than 51,000 members, Community Associations Institute (CAI) advocates for public policies that support effective self-governance, responsible community management, and the long-term sustainability of community associations.

> Community associations are a mainstream form of housing—not a niche market. 35.2% of all U.S. housing is located in a community association.

88% say association rules protect or have no negative effect on property values.

63% oppose additional regulation of community associations.

86% rate their community association experience as positive or neutral.

83% always or usually vote in state and local elections; 88% vote in national elections.

SOURCES: Community Associations Fact Book, Foundation for Community Association Research, foundation.caionline.org

Clarke & Freedman (2019), Journal of Housing Economics

Note: Statistics published are estimates generated from public/private data sources, including the American Community Survey (ACS).

COMMUNITY ASSOCIATIONS INSTITUTE

Follow us @CAIadvocacy @CAIsocial

©2026 COMMUNITY ASSOCIATIONS INSTITUTE